Leadership Development Advisor

BIOGRAPHY //

Christine Ramsey's connection to Capturing Kids' Hearts® began early, as a student of the very processes she lives today. As a 9th-grade student at Deer Park High School, she participated in a Teen Leadership™ class. This class greatly impacted her educational experience and developed her leadership skills. She was invited to be a student speaker at Capturing Kids' Hearts conferences in Round Top, Texas, to share her experiences with participating teachers.

Christine went on to graduate from Texas A&M University and began her career teaching algebra at Deer Park High School. She later married, moved to Bryan, Texas, and currently teaches at Davila Middle School. Davila's entire faculty attended a Capturing Kids' Hearts training and the following year, Christine was asked to teach the first Teen Leadership class on her campus. She is excited to come full circle and teach the same class that had such a huge impact on her as a student.

In addition to making a difference in students' lives, Christine has become a part of the Flippen Group's training faculty. She is passionate about sharing the impact of the Capturing Kids' Heart process with others.

Christine currently resides in College Station, Texas, with her husband, Wayne, and their son, Hudson. They love spending time with their family and friends.
