BIOGRAPHY //

Born in the Philippines to a military family, Steffanie Miller has spent much of her life traveling. Her career in education has been largely dedicated to serving communities and families in the underserved areas of Charleston, South Carolina. The development of children and empowering others has been a long-time passion of hers.

Her introduction to Capturing Kids' Hearts transformed the way she communicated and increased the quality of the culture in her classrooms. Over the years, in addition to teaching, Steffanie has been the leader of several youth groups at her church that focus on empowerment and character development of teenagers and college students.

Steffanie enjoys spending time with her family and friends. You may find her traveling, cooking, crafting or even listening to a great live band.
